Ephesus Library

An Old Greek Library filled with books Originates the idea of Panta Rhei, a philosophy To explain and support daily life

Which at its core means that there Is just one thing that never changes: Everything changes constantly Although this doesn't give much Comfort when you die The parable told by Heraclitus of Ephesus Is that one never crosses The same river twice Not so hard to understand But there are some other ways to look at it

Better to say, being part of the river, One never crosses it at all It is not the changing stream that matters But the quality of its sweet water

Any drop has a conscious choice How to influence its precious Taste, Realize and enjoy the wonderful River personally and all its totality

And when a water drop evaporates, A tragedy for itself And the river left behind, Into the sky and clouds above, One day it will rain And come back again And be sure that all the while It didn't forget that it was part Of the river all this time

Wanting urgently to return To enjoy and improve forever The songs of subtle still water

There is a special place where the river Flows forward ánd back again once a year It seems to reverse in Time!

> Or shall we say, Being part of the river, Time was an illusion anyway

But what about Cleopatra, Paulus and Maria who visited Ephesus in its glorious days?

It's a Greek Tragedy and Comedy in One The river flows into the Sweet Timeless Ocean